D. W. Watt Tells of Joining The Forces of The Famous Adam Forepaugh Show

Having taken his readers through the trials and tribulations of the old time circus show, starting as ticket seller for the Harry Robbins show and serving one year as manager, Mr. Watt, this week opens his career with the Adam Forepaugh circus, at that time one of the largest in the country. Adam Forepaugh and P. T. Barnum circuses were the two giants of the amusement world that traveled in the 'eighties. It was hip and tack between those two rival showmen and while today we remember the Barnum aggregation as the biggest, in those days Adam Forepaugh was a rival that could not be overlooked. In fact, there are many old-time show men who place the Forepaugh circus in the first rank and give credit to the Philadelphia butcher, who left his meat block to become an amusement king.

Watt's career with the Forepaugh show, which he will continue on the succeeding Saturday evenings, will be filled with interest. It is a story that is always new and to the average reader it is most interesting.

There are many little incidents that will be taken up such as the bringing of the sacred white elephant to this country, "the trained kangaroos, broken to drive, great parade features," which may be overlooked but will not be forgotten and will be found in the stories of life under the great "white tops" as told by Mr. Watt as he only can tell them.

"It was on Thursday, March 30, '82, I received a telegram from Adam Forepaugh asking me to name my salary to sell tickets for him the coming year. I answered him and in less than four hours I had received an order to join his forces for the season."

"I left Chicago Sunday evening, April 2, over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for Washington, D. C. where the show was to open the following Thursday. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad those days certainly should have belonged to Colonel Roosevelt's forces for it certainly was one of the rough riders of the West."

"I arrived in Washington Monday evening and Tuesday morning about ten o'clock I took my first look at the big show. Everybody there was a stranger to me and as I walked on to the grounds many remarks were made as to the length of time I would last."

"I went to take the place of Ben Linsky who was a good fellow and had been there many years and had a host of friends. We were to show in Washington three days. Some of the old-timers said that that time would be as long as I would last; others said they would give me a week, and so on."

"We opened in a snow storm there during the afternoon, but it cleared toward the evening and we had a big business."

"I will here give some idea of the size of the show even in those days. The circus tent was one hundred and eighty-five feet round top, with five sixty-foot middle pieces, making the length four hundred and eighty-five feet and the width one hundred and eighty-five feet. Next was the menagerie tent, one hundred and forty feet round top, with five forty-foot middle pieces."

"Then an elephant tent nearly as large, where there were twenty-nine elephants. It took sixty cars to move the show, most of which were sixty feet. Nine of these were sleepers and four advance cars."

"Adam Forepaugh, from the time he started in the show business until his death on January 24, 1890, never had a partner. He was always to be seen at the front door of the ticket wagon. In the ten years I was with him he never was away from the show more than four days in all that time and counted his own tickets after every performance."

"From Washington we went to Baltimore for three days, then to three smaller towns between there and Philadelphia and opened in Philadelphia the following Monday for two weeks, which was always the home of the Forepaugh show from the beginning."

"From there we started West and two weeks later showed in Cincinnati for four days and two weeks later we opened in Chicago for a two weeks' engagement at State and Twenty-second streets. There we did an enormous business, turning people away nearly every night."

"Shortly after leaving Chicago, notices were put around the show saying that this season proper would close in St. Louis on September 14, where the show would be reorganized and start for a southern trip of three months. All those not wishing to go South could close the season and if they wished to go would have to sign new contracts."

"I did not think much of the Southern trip and told Mr. Forepaugh I did not care to go, but he said, 'There is no one to take your place and I know that you would, on joy it there and the people there are not as tough as they talk about. Most of those Southern people are the most hospitable in the world.'"

"I finally concluded to make the trip. Our first stand out of St. Louis was Cairo which was on Saturday. After nearly all the people had gotten into the show in the afternoon, a drunken man rode a broncho up to the front door, jumped off and deliberately pulled a gun and shot at Mr. Forepaugh who was standing in the front entrance, but his aim was bad and no one was hurt except that the man himself had to be sent to the hospital for repairs."

"A little later Mr. Forepaugh came out to count up the house as he always did, but never spoke about the shooting. I finally turned to him and said: 'Governor, we have not got very far south yet, but far enough so that they show their hospitality.' He said: 'Don't get smart now. Those things are just as liable to happen in Janesville as here.'"

"From Cairo we had a long Sunday run of about three hundred miles to Holly Springs, Mississippi where we were to show on Monday. We arrived there Sunday evening in a cold, drizzling rain and by the time we got up to the hotel for supper it was about eight o'clock. This hotel was an immense frame structure, without a carpet or rug in the house, but very clean and a good table."

"The next day we only showed in the afternoon as we did in nearly all the smaller Southern towns. But the crowds at a circus in those days were of the mountaineer kind and nearly every day there was more or less trouble. A little later we reached New Orleans where we showed for three weeks and on Sunday showed three times a day."

"This long trip through the South was a financial failure. The show, after its reorganization in St. Louis lost about $55,000 before closing the season, which was at Chattanooga, Tenn., the show grounds being at the foot of the famous Lookout Mountain."

"From here the show was shipped home to its winter quarters at Philadelphia. Mr. Forepaugh's real office was at 1625 Green street and the winter quarters for the show at Spring Garden, a distance of six miles. In these quarters Mr. Forepaugh played about sixty-five people during the winter. He built all of his own cars, cages, tableaux and wagons of all kinds for the show and his son, Adam, Jr., who is the greatest animal trainer in the world, trained the animals for the coming season. Here I closed my first season with a really great show and a contract in my pocket to return the next season."

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS CLUB HELD MEETING YESTERDAY

Special Session Was Held Yesterday Afternoon at Library Hall and Plans Made for Picnic.

At a special meeting of the Summer Club of Household Economics held in Library Hall yesterday afternoon, five new members were voted into the club and plans for the picnic of the club to be held at Footville, June 27, were made. The ladies will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Frank Lowry and dinner will be served in the church. Instead of going to Footville on the train as has formerly been done, the party will drive from this city in carriages. A program will be given at the picnic with Mrs. Marjorie Madison as the principal speaker. The arrangements for the picnic are in the hands of Mrs. W. W. Woolf, while Mrs. G. H. Russell will attend to the matter of securing carriages.

MORE READERS—MORE BUSINESS

W. C. Kenaga.

The advertiser who wonders whether it is better to change his copy or allow a given advertisement to run several consecutive times without change, can easily satisfy himself by asking 25 people the question, "When in reading advertisements you come upon one which you know you have read before, do you reread it?"

With the answer he is certain to receive in mind, let him also remember that the department store, clothing, shoe dealer and furniture man seldom repeat an advertisement.

If this is a business about which there is but one story to tell, let him tell it each time in a new way.

Experience shows that a change of copy will attract more readers, and this in itself eventually brings more business.

MISCHIEF-MAKING BOYS REPRIMANDED BY JUDGE

Clifford Heck and Glenn Peters Accused of Making Disturbance at Lyric Theatre Last Night.

Clifford Heck and Glenn Peters, boys fourteen years of age, were taken into custody by the police late last evening on the complaint of Mr. Heck, ticket-taker at the Lyric theatre. He said the boys had been tampering with the ventilating fan and when he undertook to direct them they aimed him and used them in a most insulting manner. The complaint against them was not made formal and after they were reprimanded by Judge Philpott, the boys were permitted to go on their promise of good behavior. They were warned that a second offense would mean a severe penalty. The police have received several complaints on the conduct of the boys.

When I was able to get up I was so weak and thin that I could hardly walk. What I ate disagreed with me. I had stomach and liver trouble, and my feet and limbs were swollen so I could scarcely drag around. I took Peruna and it has done wonders for me. My cure was a surprise to my friends, for they never expected to see me well again. I just took two bottles of Peruna after doctoring for five months and growing worse all the time."

SPORT SNAP SHOTS by DAN McCARTHY

Gentle, Russian, cultured, civilized, kind. The country that never did anything worse than to send annually thousands of its best men and women to the frozen wilds of Siberia, or to turn loose in a defenseless Jewish village whole regiments of murderous Cossacks, is far too finest to witness a boxing match! The supreme court of Russia has just held that boxing matches are unlawful in that country. It bases its decision upon a statute passed 120 years ago directing the czar's ministers to see the lower orders should not use their fists on each other in public or use bad language. According to the court the boxer would constitute the lower orders and the spectators doubtless would provide the bad language.

The sensation of the present athletic season is Ted Meredith, twenty-year-old Philadelphia boy and student of Mercersburg academy. Recently in the middle-state intercol-league meet, Meredith tore around the quarter mile track in just 48.45 seconds, making a new world's record. Meredith ranks now with the best middle-distance runners in this country. He has made the half-mile in 1:54.45. He is one of the few men who will make the Olympic team from the scholastic ranks.

Jack Johnson's muscular breast swells with a lofty ambition. He wants to climb up on every blamed white hope in the world before mid-night next labor day. Beginning with Jim Flynn on July 4 he proposes to meet one hope per week until the supply is exhausted. The only fighters in sight who would give him any concern are Flynn, Al Palmer and Luther McCarthy.

Harry Wolfer, the New York Highlander star out felder, who was injured while playing on May 18, will not be able to get back into the game before the middle of August, his physicians declare.

Ray Caldwell, the tall, slim hurler of the New York Highlanders staff is one of the big disappointments of the season in baseball. Wolfer expected more from him than from any of his other hurlers with the exception of Ford, and is keenly disappointed.

Manager Griffith, of the Washington Senators, now has five pitchers whom he can work regularly—Johnson, Groom, Walker, Hughes and Akers.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1906, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"This Hart gone?" queried Edith Carr. "Not. He came in late and began to talk about starting to California. He hasn't slept in weeks to amount to anything. I put him to bed. There is time enough to start to California when he awakens. Edith, what are you planning to do next with that boy of mine?"

"Will you tell him I want to see him before he goes?"

"Yes, but I won't wake him."

"I don't want you to. Just tell him in the morning."

"Very well."

Hart was not gone. Edith fell asleep. She arose at noon the next day, took a cold bath, ate her breakfast, dressed carefully, and leaving word that she had gone to the forest she walked slowly across the leaves. She was thinking hard and fast.

Henderson came swiftly down the path. A long sleep, food and Edith's message had done him good. He had dressed in new light flannels that were becoming. Edith met him.

"Let us walk in the forest," she said. "You passed the old Catholic graveyard and went back into the deepest wood of the island. There Edith seated herself on a mossy old log and Henderson studied her. He could detect a change. She was still pale and her eyes tired, but the dull, strained look was gone. He wanted to hope, but he did not dare.

"What have you thought of that you wanted yet, Edith?" he asked lightly as he stretched himself at her feet.

"You?"

Henderson lay tense and very still.

"Well, I am here."

"Thank heaven for that! I didn't want you to go away."

"Not at all?"

"Not at all; not over; not unless you take me with you, Hart. I can't honestly say that I love you with the love you deserve. My heart is too sore. It's too soon to know. But I love you some way. You are necessary to me. You are my comfort, my shield. If you want me, as you know me to be, Hart, you can consider me yours."

Henderson kissed her hand passionately. "Don't, Edith," he begged. "Don't say those things. I can't bear it. I understand. Everything will come right in time. Love like mine must bring a reward. You will love me some day. I can wait. I am the most patient fellow."

"But I must say it," cried Edith. "I think, Hart, that I have been on the wrong road to find happiness. I planned to finish life as I started it with Phil, and you see how glad he was to change. He wanted the other sort of girl far more than he ever wanted me. And you, Hart, honest, now—I'll know if you don't tell me the truth—would you rather have a wife as I planned to live with Phil or would you rather have her as Elvira Constock intends to live with him?"

"Edith," cried the man, "Edith!"

"Of course, you can't say it in plain English," said the girl. "You are far too chivalrous for that. You needn't say anything. I am answered. If you could have your choice you wouldn't have a society wife, either. In your heart you'd like the smaller home of comfort, the furtherance of your ambitions, the paintable meals regularly served and little children around you. I am sick of all we have grown up to, Hart. When your hour of trouble comes there is no comfort for you. I am tired to death. You find out what you want to do and be, that is a man's work in the world, and I will plan our home with no thought save your comfort. I'll be the other kind of a girl as fast as I can learn. I can't correct all my faults in one day, but I'll change as rapidly as I can."

Henderson was not talking then, as they sat through a long silence. At last Henderson heard Edith draw a quick breath, and lifting his head he looked where she pointed. Up a fern stalk climbed a curious looking object. They watched breathlessly. By lavender feet along a big, purple, ivy-covered, yellow body. Yellow and lavender wings began to expand, and take on color. Every instant great beauty became more apparent. It was one of those double breasted franks, which do occur on rare occasions, or merely an English imperialis moth that in the cool damp northern forest had failed to emerge in June. Edith Carr drew back with a long, shivering breath. Henderson caught her hands and gripped them firmly. Steadily she looked the thought of her heart into his eyes.

"By all the powers, you shall not!" swore the man. "You have done enough. I will smother that thing!"

"Oh, no, you won't!" cried the girl, clinging to his hands. "I am not big enough yet, Hart, but before I leave this forest I shall have grown to breadth and strength to carry that to her. She needs two of each kind. Phil only got her one. You may watch me deliver it!"

"Phil may be there by now."

"I hope so. I should like him to see me do one decent thing by which to remember me."

"I tell you that is not necessary!"

"Not necessary?" cried the girl, her great eyes shining. "Not necessary? Then what on earth is the thing doing here? I just have boasted that I would change; that I would be like her; that I would grow bigger and broader. As the words are spoken, God gives me the opportunity to prove whether I am sincere. Help me, as you always have done!"

Henderson clenched his teeth and held her hand. The moth had emerged too recently to be troublesome. It climbed on her fingers quietly and obediently clung there without moving. So hand in hand they went down the dark forest path. A strange excitement took possession of Edith. She began to feel proud of the creature.

"Do you know," she said to Henderson, "this is growing under every step. It's clinging is not disagreeable, as I thought it would be. I feel as if I were saving it, protecting it. I am proud that we are taking it to be put into a collection or a book. It seems like doing a thing worth while."

"Edith, if you don't stop," said Henderson. "I will take you in my arms and kiss the face half off you, here on the arvonio. You are adorable!"

"There's the place, and, thank goodness, there is a crowd," she said.

"Hello, every one," she cried as she came on the wide veranda. "Only see what we found up in the forest. We thought you might like to have it for some of your collections."

She held out the moth as she walked straight to Elvira, who arose to meet her, crying, "How perfectly splendid! I don't even know how to begin to thank you."

Elvira took the moth. Edith shook hands with all of them and asked Philip if he were improving. She said a few polite words to the O'Morans, declined to remain on account of an engagement and went away gracefully.

"Well, bully for her!" said Mrs. Constock. "She's a little thoroughbred after all!"

"That was a mighty big thing for her to be doing," said Freddie in a hushed voice.

"If you know her as well as I do," said Philip Ammon, "you would have a better conception of what that cost."

"I have to take care of this," faltered Elvira, hurrying for the door to hide the tears which were rolling down her cheeks.

"I must help," said Ammon, disappearing also. "Elvira," he called, catching up with her, "take me where I can cry too. What's she great?"

"Superb!" exclaimed Elvira. "I have no words. I feel so humbled!"

"So do I," said Ammon. "I think a great deal like that always makes one feel so. Now are you happy?"

"Unspokeably happy!" answered Elvira.

DOUBLE-HEADER IS SCHEDULED SUNDAY

Cardinals Meet K. C. Nine and White Sox Matched With Milton Junction Team at Athletic Park.

Two games are scheduled at Athletic park tomorrow afternoon, offering the best baseball attraction in this section for Sunday. The Cardinals will try their luck at a second game of the season with the K. C. C. aggregation, the first game being called in the second inning on account of rain. The White Sox and a Milton Junction team are matched for the second game tomorrow.

The K. C. team will have irregular lineup but the cardinals are planning several important changes. The cardinals have done some good work this year and had a brilliant record last season. Their tentative lineup is as follows: Wilson catch, Connell pitcher, Jones short, Connors first, G. Cronin second, J. Ryan third, H. Ryan left field, F. Cronin centerfield, Klusky right field.

White Sox Game.
Tomorrow afternoon the Janesville White Sox will cross bats with a strong aggregation from Milton Junction. The Sox have been practicing hard for they do not expect to see the same team. The lineup will be as follows: Blahod catch, Britt pitcher, Nolan short, Atchey first, Dalton second, McGinley third, Stewart left field, Cronin center field, Porter right field.

GOLFERS TO TEE OFF
FOR TOM MORRIS' CUP

Sinnissippi Golfers in the List of Clubs Competing for the Coveted Prize.

Nearly seventy clubs, throughout the United States and Canada, including the Sinnissippi Golf Club, are competing today and Sunday in the fourth annual competition for the Tom Morris Memorial trophy.

Terrific competition is the largest thing in the history of golf, extending from Pittsburgh west to Honolulu and from Winnipeg south to El Paso.

The trophy was presented four years ago by Peter Dawson of Glasgow, Scotland, to perpetuate the memory of Tom Morris, the great old man of the game. This year the anniversary of the birth of Tom Morris falls on Sunday and the competition was moved ahead one day. Morris was born June 16, 1821, and died in May, 1908. Nearly seventy years of the eighty-seven he lived were devoted to golf.

Local golf enthusiasts who will enter the contest for the trophy, have been named according to their records as follows: Al Schaller, L. M. Brownell, S. D. Tallman, J. P. Baker, O. Sutherland, J. L. Wilcox, P. C. Grant and S. J. Baker. The substitute players are: W. B. Wheeler, E. C. Baumann, Fred Schaller, H. E. McCoy, H. H. Bliss, George R. King, P. F. Lewis and C. H. Gage.

Each club is represented by eight players of 25 years of age or older. Each team plays against the par of its course. The trophy is presented to the team turning in the lowest score and the members of the winning team receive medals. A gold medal is also presented to the player making the lowest score.

Golfers and club members of the local club will be interested in the following notice of the House Committee relative to ordering meals for the regular club days, Tuesdays. The notice is as follows: "All persons who anticipate attending the regular club supper Tuesday evening, will kindly notify Mrs. Puffball, not later than Monday evening of their intentions so that ample supper accommodations may be made for them. On Tuesday next the regular club supper will be held and the dinner in the evening. Thursday next is the afternoon for the bridge and games and judging from the past three games are most enjoyable affairs."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
Today whatever may annoy
The word for me is joy,
Just simple joy!
What's there to be of sorrow
I'll put off till tomorrow,
And when tomorrow comes,
Why then 'twill be today
And joy again!
—John Kendrick Bangs.

The choice sentiment expressed in this little verse is worth considering just now, when the public mind is so much disturbed and when so many people are annoyed with all sorts of dire forebodings, on account of the stormy condition of the political atmosphere; and so it happens that the joy of today is sacrificed to the worry of tomorrow, and like the woman who "enjoyed poor health," we attempt to enjoy the glaring picture of an overwrought imagination.

Little groups of men got together and discuss the situation. One of them says: "If Taft succeeds himself as president, it means four years more of cold-blooded law and regulation. He has been a disappointment, and while I have always been a republican, I won't vote for him."

Another says: "That's all right, but give me Taft in preference to Roosevelt. Why? If the colonel should be elected to a third term we might see him without the republic and establish a monarchy, for we would have the Czar and his blooded law, right from the but on all propositions. My republicanism is all right, but not any Roosevelt for me."

Still another suggests that it begins to look like La Follette, and then he says: "Do you know what I would do if the Wisconsin senator happened to be president?" No one was wise enough to predict and so he continued: "I would make a break for the tall timber and Canada, and don't you forget it."

A little man in the bunch says: "Well, I've always been a democrat, and they tell me that Bryan will be the next president, but not any Bryan for me. Why, I'd rather vote the prohibition ticket, and I'm not much of a prohibitionist either."

This spirit of unrest is widespread, and the political situation is the principal topic for discussion in all parts of the country. Men honestly differ as to candidates and leaders, and in the heat of a campaign many things are said which might better have been left unsaid.

Some people become so wrought up that they predict a national crisis which will result in the collapse of the best government under the sun. To their notion the country was never confronted with a more serious problem and unless things happen to go their way, they won't be responsible for results.

Have you ever noticed the popular comments on the weather, and the seasons, as they come and go? "We never had so much rain or a spring so backward." The corn ought to be a foot high and it is just coming out of the ground; there won't be any corn crop." A little later the drought may consume us, as it did a year ago, and then we forget all about the hot, parched summer of 1911, and are certain that we never had such a season as the present.

Every four years we have a presidential election, and something out of the ordinary usually happens, but the most of us are confident that the present campaign, and the dire results which may follow, has no parallel in the history of the nation. The trouble with many of us is that our mental equipment is long on imagination and short on memory.

The country has passed through a number of crises during the past half century, when the clouds were so ominous that the present disturbance seems like a ripple on the stream, compared to the rushing torrent. The dark days of civil strife, extending from '61 to '65, and the climax of the martyred Lincoln which followed, with the uncertainty as to what his successor, Andy Johnson, would do, with a nation rent in twain, was a crisis which tried the temper and tested the courage and loyalty of the American people.

But they were equal to the great emergency, and out of the ordeal came a bankrupt nation, bleeding at every pore, strong in determination, and brave of heart, to meet the responsibilities and heal the scars which the war had made. On the 28th of June, 1876, the Democratic National convention, in session at St. Louis, nominated Governor Samuel J. Tilden of New York, as their candidate for president. The republicans placed in nomination Rutherford B. Hayes, and the campaign which followed was very exciting.

Tilden received 181 electoral votes, or within one of a majority, but contests from four states resulted in dispute, and great bitterness developed. As a last resort an agreement was reached to submit all disputed returns to a committee of fifteen, composed of five senators, five representatives, and five members of the supreme court.

This committee was in session for months and the people, practically without a president, waited patiently for the decision which finally gave the election to Hayes by a bare majority of one. Tilden always felt that he was defrauded, but the verdict of the committee was final, and within a month the nation had settled down to normal conditions.

This was a political crisis, where men were ready to fight at the drop of the hat. The issue was so evenly divided that a board of arbitration was necessary to determine results, and the destiny of the two great parties was at stake. But the people were again equal to the occasion and peace was soon restored.

In 1895 there appeared on the political horizon that great apostle of free silver, William Jennings Bryan. The people were slowly recovering from the panic of 1893, and a big silver dollar that cost but fifty cents, looked like easy money, and when it became the national issue, the next year, with Mr. Bryan as the standard-bearer, more than six million voters rallied to his support.

This was another crisis where the honor of the nation was at stake, and again the sober-thinking people, regardless of party, came to the rescue, and the integrity of the country was preserved.

The campaign of 1912 can hardly be called a crisis, because it lacks the dignity of the title. The life of parties may be involved, and it may appear to some timid souls that the life of the republic is imperiled, but that is a dyspeptic conclusion.

Whether Roosevelt stampedes the convention or bolts the party, whether Taft is nominated and elected or defeated, whether La Follette continues to be good, or goes out and does some more reforming, or whether the democratic party surprises itself by furnishing the next president, the most of us will be sewing wood at the same old stand, after the fourth of November.

Parties may go on the rocks through bad management, and party leaders may drop from view with a dull and sickening thud, but the bone and sinew of the nation is not affected, and the march of progress will not be retarded.

In the meantime, there's a lot of old-fashioned joy laying around loose, waiting to be appropriated, and it is worth remembering that if we fail to find it today, that the loss is never made good.

Today whatever may annoy
The word for me is joy,
Just simple joy!
What's there to be of sorrow
I'll put off till tomorrow,
And when tomorrow comes,
Why then 'twill be today
And joy again.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By Roy K. Moulton

According to Uncle Abner, Attorney General Wickersham always sounds to me a good deal like imitation porch furniture. There isn't a woman who can drive a nail or one who can't drive a bargain. There are two ways to win attention in this country. One way is to be elected president and the other way is to be a prize fighter. The writers of this country are divided into two great classes, the sporting editors and those who use English. Elmer Spink says he is undecided whether to marry a milliner or a school teacher, as they both look good from a financial standpoint.

Personal.
G. H.—If you feel that you must pin your money on a horse tomorrow, pin it on the clothes horse before you start from home and leave it there. Nervous—We don't know whether the eastern prophet is correct when he says the world is going to come to an end next month and we really don't care very much. We have only one more installment to pay on our encyclopaedia and when that is all settled the ambition of our young life will have been accomplished.

Personal.
G. H.—The best thing to take for that tired, nervous feeling you complain of is a good sleep and then a nice long ride on the water wagon. Oh, don't mention it, we prithen, you are perfectly welcome.

Ode to a Race Horse.
O, promise me, old skate on whom I bet,
The trust I place in you you'll not forget.
The wagon of a week are in your care;
The promises you made are passing fair.
No matter how at other times your thought may roam,

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

THE MIRACLES OF LOVE.

Did you ever read Lincoln Steffens' short story "The Least of These"? It is about Bailey. Bailey is a mission worker with a great pity in his heart for the down and out of society. In order to help this class he got an appointment as night guard and was promoted to be special deputy jailer. A man never got so low down that Bailey would not help him. He met men on their own level and was a friend. They were never too dirty or offensive for Bailey. He washed them and ministered to them and put them to bed. When they got up in the morning and in their right minds Bailey helped them.

It was a rough ministry. Sometimes the poor outcasts would curse Bailey or rebel against his baths, but he was as gentle though firm as any mother, and his gentleness won. And then—When the prisoners had slept a good clean sleep Bailey would probe their hearts, like a kind surgeon probing a wound, until he found the tender places. He touched the spot tenderly, quickly, and then he was ready to take up any question in which they were interested. He did not force religion or the Bible upon them if they didn't want to talk about those matters. Bailey was wise.

He put into the mental stomach of those poor creatures, as he put into their physical stomachs, whatever of a wholesome, nourishing nature they could keep down. Bailey knew. And when the jail sentences were up Bailey helped the prisoners to find honest work and get upon their feet. He hired a house where he lodged the fallen men. He never despised of them. When they left the city his letters followed them.

Love is love. We try to reform men by punishing them. We fail, of course, because we cannot distinguish between hatred of the crime and hatred of the criminal. Bailey could distinguish. Love never fails. It is the only thing in all the world that does not fail. And the world is dying everywhere for a little bit of it. Bailey loved men, not theoretically, but generally, but specifically. Therefore he worked miracles with men—the miracles of love.

COOK VEGETABLES

Union Cookery Bags
YOU know the reason why you cook vegetables in the least possible water—just enough to cover them. It is because the more water you use, the more flavor you boil out. Boil just one potato in beef or parsnip or one carrot in a gallon of water—and the vegetable would come out almost tasteless.

All vegetables contain a large percentage of water—enough water to cook them thoroughly—cook them right in their own steam—if the water were not evaporated by dry heat. Now we have a cooking method that retains all this natural moisture in the vegetable while cooking—Union Cookery Bags. These bags are made of a special paper for this purpose only—no pan, pot or kettle is used. The bag will not break or leak in the oven. Prepare the vegetable—cabbage, potato, carrot, turnip, cauliflower, string beans, lima beans, or any other vegetable—just as you desire—and place it in a Union Cookery Bag according to the easy and simple directions that come to you in a Free Book. Then place the bag, containing the vegetable or vegetables, on a grid or perforated shelf in the oven, without any pan—cook the length of time directed in the Free Book of Recipes and Directions—and you will have vegetables with more taste in them than you had ever known to be possible.

A Free Book—with many recipes, written from the experience of expert chefs in Europe and America—has just been published, telling you everything you want to know and exactly how to use Union Cookery Bags for cooking all sorts of vegetables. Free books are on free distribution at the office of this paper. Call and get your copy—just ask for the Paper Bag Cookery Book. Be sure to get this valuable Free Book.

Then go to your grocer, meat shop, hardware or stationery store—and ask for Union Cookery Bags. The cost is only a quarter for a package of liberally assorted sizes. If no one of these dealers near you carries Union Cookery Bags, insist that the one you trade with most shall get them for you immediately from his wholesale house.

Cook in Union Cookery Bags—save money, time and work—and enjoy the new wholesomeness and tastefulness of foods so cooked that they retain all their rich flavor and nutriment. Order a package of Union Cookery Bags of your dealer today.

Some of the best values we have are never mentioned in the paper because the quantity is too small to withstand the general demand created through advertising. If we haven't enough of any line to last all day, we don't advertise it. We don't mention special values and then circumscribe the advertisement with conditions with which you cannot comply. We don't believe in making it hard for you to get the real specials we put on sale. ## THREE MEN IN AUTO STRUCK BY A TRAIN; FINLEY BADLY HURT

Richard F. Finley Pinned Under Machine Which Was Struck on St. Paul Crossing Near Hanover at Noon Today.

Richard F. Finley received very serious injuries to his head, back and chest, R. A. Arnold and J. W. Dye sustained painful injuries and bruises, and the automobile in which they were riding was completely demolished when it was struck by the west-bound train on the St. Paul road near Hanover at noon today.

Mr. Finley and party had been to Hanover to see his brother, James Finley, who owns a farm near the scene of the accident. They were on their way home when struck by the train on the dangerous crossing one and a half miles east of Hanover, and about six miles west of Janesville.

The train was an hour late. Messrs. Dye and Arnold were thrown out of the machine, which turned turtle, pinning Mr. Finley underneath. Aid was quickly summoned and the injured men were hurried to Janesville in an automobile.

Mr. Finley, whose injuries were by far the more serious, was taken at once to his home, 463 South Jackson street, and Dr. George W. Filfield was summoned. Mr. Finley had not fully regained consciousness at three o'clock this afternoon and a complete diagnosis of his condition could not be made. It was evident from a preliminary examination that his back was very badly hurt, several ribs were broken, and that he was suffering from a terrible concussion of the brain. How serious the internal injuries might be it was impossible to say. Dr. Filfield stated that the injuries were not fatal, or at least he would not call them so as yet.

PLAYGROUNDS SOLVE VACATION PROBLEMS

GIVE OCCUPATION TO CHILDREN TURNED LOOSE AT CLOSE OF SCHOOLS.

MORAL SAFETY-VALVES

Animal Spirits Can Find Harmless Vent—Parents Relieved of Much Care and Anxiety.

Evident as is the need of the child for systematic and well directed play during the school year to keep its body healthy and its mind keen and alert, this need is brought home most forcibly to the parent when the vacations begin. What can be done with Johnny to keep him occupied and out of mischief? Shall he be turned loose to find his own amusement, perhaps beyond the control of father and mother, and of a character that is degrading and immoral? Must the children play their games in the street in constant danger of being struck by the cars or automobiles, or shall they be provided with a place to play, with apparatus to use, and a director to lend and supervise their activities?

E. B. DEGROOT, Chicago, Ill.

Has the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars each year for recreation.

The vacation problem presents itself to almost every parent of a city child. The youngster may be able to send their children into the country and to the summer camps; the older and most energetic children may find work; but there remain to be cared for the children who most need attention, those of the laboring man and artisan who have to remain in the city. Shall they be deprived of the natural inheritance of a child, a place to play, or have no provision during the vacation period for helpful direction and moral safeguarding? The answer to the question is the public playground.

Playgrounds Not a Fad.
Let no one entertain the belief that public playgrounds are a fad, a transient whim, established in response to inflated sentiment, and not "out" of recognition of a real and vital need. A short review of what the cities have done for playgrounds will convince the skeptic that the playgrounds have done something for the cities.

What Massachusetts Did.
One of the most interesting reformations ever presented to the people of Massachusetts was that of playgrounds, resulting from an enactment of the legislature of 1908. The act provided that at the next city and town elections all places of 10,000 or more population should vote on the question of providing playgrounds, conveniently located and of proper size and equipment, for the recreation and physical education of the minors of such city or town; one for the first 20,000 and one for each additional 20,000. Twenty-three cities have voted, and in twenty-two of them the vote has been overwhelmingly favorable. The total vote cast has been 122,806 for, to 25,496 against.

Other State Legislation.
State laws requiring, authorizing, or at least permitting and thus off-cially encouraging play-grounds have been passed by several state legislatures. New Jersey and Ohio have on-going acts. Minnesota authorities have issued licenses for acquiring playground sites. Several progressive state legislatures have the matter under consideration.

"The development of the play idea," says Herbert H. Wolf in the American City, "has given rise to a new sentiment regarding school-grounds, so that there is being set in many states a definite standard as to the number of square feet of play space per child that ought to be provided around the school building. This varies from 30 square feet per child in the large eastern and middle western cities to a maximum of 100 square feet in the northwest coast region. A bill was actually before the legislature of the state of Washington making it obligatory to provide 100 square feet of ground for each child. This failed to become a law because of the Governor's veto, but serves to show the remarkable change in attitude regarding the question of space within very recent years.

Action of Coast Cities.
"There are also a number of concrete illustrations of this attitude. The school board of Portland, Oregon, spent $150,000 last year in enlarging its school grounds; Oakland, California, voted nearly a half million of bonds for the same purpose; Sacramento voted a large sum of money, some of which will be used for enlarging school-grounds; Tacoma, Wash., likewise. It is the plan of Spokane, when the million dollar bond issue is available, which will probably be this fall, to purchase 27 sites in connection with already existing playgrounds, thus making them more adaptable and efficient in developing the play idea. There are many other instances of the same tendency even in the country districts."

Importance of Play.
The importance of play to the child is very explicitly set forth by Emmet D. Angell, in his recent book entitled "Play."

"Play," says the author, "sums up the one great part of life's activities that is spontaneously and enthusiastically accepted by all normal human beings. One does not look to men alone for convincing proof that play is an inherent quality of all intelligent life, for the animals of the forest and field give us abundant evidence that joyous activity is not confined to the human breed."

"There is not a doubt that the life of a nation is directly related to the games of its people. Give the child

L. H. WEIR.

Field Secretary for the Pacific Coast.

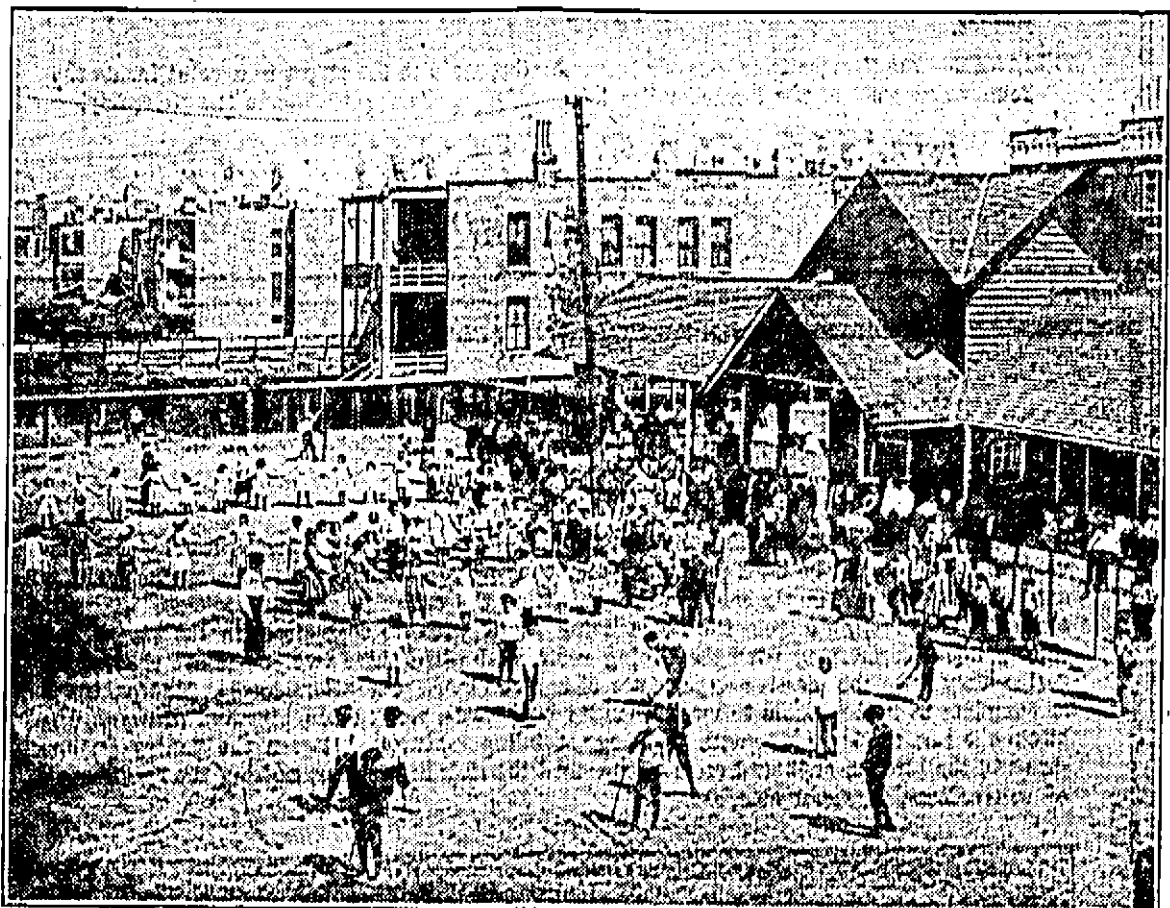

a chance to play well directed and the possibilities are greater for better men and women and a stronger nation. If the child has played well he will work well. No greater mistake is made than by the parent who curbs his child in satisfying the "play instinct. Play is a logical demand of youth, and the boy or girl whose play life has been stunted passes into adult life handicapped for the struggles to come. Play is an education, and it is an education that gives to the young pupils strength, health, alertness, aggressiveness, sympathy, friendship, and courage, and better than all, it paves the way for a deeper morality than would come in any other way."

"Assimilating the immigrant. One of the great problems of the nation," says E. B. DeGroot, Director of Playgrounds in the Chicago South Park System, "is the welding together of all the different nationalities, races and classes into a unified and patriotic citizenship. Different languages, national and social customs, and the lack of common interests and meeting places, make the welding process slow and difficult among the adult population. The dominant thing in the life of the child, however, no matter of what race, nationality, or class, is play, and the public playgrounds furnish common interests and common ground for all juvenile members, future voters, and citizens of our community."

When the sergeant of the guard came round on his visits the green sentry was nowhere to be seen. The sergeant was about to depart to make inquiries when there came a rattling noise from a heap of straw, and the sentry stood before him minus his boots and looking very sleepy. "Hallo!" cried the sergeant, "where were you when I came round just now?" "Marching round," was the sentry's reply, given in tones of conscious virtue. "Marching round, were you? Why, you've got your boots off." "Yes, sergeant, I took 'em off so's I shouldn't wake the 'osses."

"I think," said Mrs. Camrox, who was arranging a musical program, "that we will have a mezzo-soprano." "All right," replied her husband. "Don't bother me about it. Go ahead and see an architect."

Ollie James, senator-elect from Kentucky, is a big man—big all over, beginning with his feet and ending with his head, excepting his supply of hair, which is thin. A conservative estimate of Mr. James' weight is a thin man would be 300 and by a fat man a trifle more than 375. After the Kentucky legislature elected Mr. James to the senate a few weeks ago, he hurried back to Washington, where he is now serving as a representative from the blue jeans country. He bought his railroad ticket and delayed the purchase of a sleeping car berth until he got on the train. The conductor gave him a shock by showing him the diagram with only one empty berth and that an upper. Mr. James is not built on architectural lines adaptable to an upper berth, and even in a lower he holds an overflow meeting in the aisle. He took the upper and worked on the sympathies of the conductor and porter by the most expeditious means. They canvassed the car and could find no man agreeable to a switch from a lower to an upper. Mr. James took up the quest himself and in the smoking compartment offered $5 for a lower. No takers. When bedtime came Mr. James walked slowly into the car and sat down in his section disconsolate. A dapper little man, weight about 115, took a seat opposite him. He was the owner of the lower berth in that section. The porter came to make up the berths. When he lowered the top shelf Ollie tested the chair with his hands and sounded doubtfully. "Hope she holds," he soliloquized. "The last time I got into one of these darned uppers she fell through with me and broke a man's leg in the berth below." Ollie got the lower.

The Home Beautiful

For the home builder with a moderate purse and small family a more pleasing and convenient design would be hard to find. Quiet comfort meets the eye as soon as the home is entered, the cosy seat on the mock vestibule invites the caller to rest and repose. A grille separates this vestibule from the large living room, with its coat closet in the corner and sliding doors connecting with the dining room, and when these two rooms are thrown together they have the massive appearance of a much more pretentious house. The pantry is as complete as it is possible to make with its cupboards, work table, bins and drawers. The kitchen is just the right size with the range standing midway between the pantry on one side and the kitchen cupboard on the other and the sink in the rear, making the maximum of convenience in small compass.

GRADUATES WELCOMED TO RANKS OF ALUMNI

CLOSING FESTIVITY OF COM-MENCEMENT WEEK WAS MOST ENJOYABLE.

BANQUET LAST NIGHT

Weather Falls to Discourage Over Two Hundred Alumni From Annual Affair.

Inconvenient weather was an inconvenience which failed to discourage the attendance of over two hundred Janesville high school alumni at the annual banquet in honor of the graduating class, held at the high school auditorium last evening.

The affair marked the close of the commencement week festivities and the 1912 graduating class received a hearty welcome into the ranks of the high school alumni. The banquet was served in the school auditorium at seven-thirty o'clock, following a rendering of the class song and class in the familiar hall room.

The banquet was served in a faultless style by the members of the junior class. The tables were arranged in attractive manner and were decorated with baskets of white daisies. At each plate was a neat program and menu card with the high school seal embossed in gold and blue, the class colors, on the cover.

President Frank Hayes, class of
'08, extended a welcome to the graduates on behalf of the alumni association. He expressed the wish that the 1912 class remain loyal to their alma mater and that they return at least once a year on the occasion of the annual reunion.

Notious Kelley, president of the 1912 class, responded to the address of welcome and assured the alumni that the graduating class had the best of intentions of returning to the annual banquet and promised for them that they would not shirk their duty to the school or to the alumni, to which they now belonged.

Miss Wilma Soverhill favored the audience with a delightful violin solo and very graciously responded to an encore. Miss Soverhill's reputation as a musician is already made and her part of the program last night was a decided treat. She was accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Lalla Soverhill.

"On Coming Luck," was the subject treated by William H. Spohn, class of '07. Mr. Spohn related an incident which occurred at the university commencement last year which demonstrated the true spirit of boy-ship to one's alma mater. An aged lady, member of the graduating class of 1871 at Wisconsin, was back for the alumni reunion and following the planting of the ivy by the 1911 class, expressed the wish that she might have a like privilege for her class.
She planted the ivy spring and declared to friends afterward that it was the happiest moment she had experienced in many years, so dear to her were the memories and the association of her college days. A like regard for the high school alma mater was the conclusion of the speaker who urged the alumni to attend the yearly reunions with as much regularity as possible.

Roger Cunningham, class of '08,

From top to bottom as follows:
Doris Amerpohl, Frank Austin, Millie Brinker, Walter Broege, Allison Burdick.

was the last speaker on the program.
His subject was "After Four Years," although, he declared, he would further speak on the subject previously announced for him, "Four Years Hence." Mr. Cunningham drew upon a fund of humorous stories for some game of wit and closed with a serious appeal that the members of the graduating class, who have been on trial during commencement week, play the game out in the busy world with earnestness and sincerity.

Several selections by the Husk Lyceum glee club and the singing of the class song by the graduates completed the most grand program.
The remaining time until twelve o'clock was spent at dancing to tumular music played by Roy Carter and drummer. The suggestion that an alumni dance be held during the holiday season, was greeted with approval.

Need of Greater Production.

If every immigrant that shall enter the ports of the United States and Canada during the next decade were to engage in cultivation of the soil the production resulting would be none too great for the reasonable needs of the people who have to be supplied.—New

DELIVERED ADDRESS ON AWAKENING INDIA

Unsanta-Kumar Roy Arraigns English Rule in Talk at United Brothers Church.

British rule in India was severely arraigned and the awakening of its native life was urged by Unsanta-Kumar Roy, who last night delivered an address on "The Awakening of India," before a large audience at the United Brothers church.

Mr. Roy, who is a native of India, and has been in this country two years, more lecturing and doing journalistic work.

His frequent audiences in India were attributed by the speaker to over-taxation by the English government. He pleads for self-government for his people and declared that they were now "capable of home-rule."

They were rapidly becoming conscious of their power and possibilities through education and the spread of democratic ideas.

Mr. Roy will spend today and Sunday in Janesville, the guest of C. J. Briggs and family, 15 North Jackson street. He will again speak at the United Brothers church Sunday evening, June 16, at 8 o'clock, his address being a comparison of conditions in the two countries.

SHOPIERE

During the evening tea and coffee and wafers were served in the reception room.

The M. E. and Congregational Ladies Aid presented Mrs. Horton on her 40th birthday Saturday afternoon at her home, and as a reminder of the occasion they presented her with a very pretty table cloth and some money. ## MAKES SUGGESTIONS AS TO SUMMER CAMP

C. B. Horton, Director of Summer Camps and Schools for Scouts, Gives Some Good Ideas.

In response to an inquiry in regard to the summer camp plan for boys scouts made to James B. West, chief scout executive, New York City, Mr. C. B. Horton, director of summer camps and schools for the scouts, to whom the inquiry was referred, makes the following suggestions:

1. Be sure you have a good cook. If no one in the troop can cook, hire one for the first few days at least.
2. If your ground is not damp, and you do not have heavy fog or dew, you can do without a tent on the ground, putting down first branches, or leaves, or hay, covering this with a rubber blanket or oilcloth, and on top of that an old quilt. Each boy can then roll up in his own double blanket (or two single blankets sewed together, or plaid with horse blanket plaid).
3. Do not have the boys sleep two by two in little tents. If you are compelled to use small tents, have at least three boys in each tent, on the principle that two boys can keep a secret and three boys can't.
4. If the boys do not wear pajamas have each boy take a change of underclothing for night (long sleeve shirts).
5. If they get caught in the rain there is no danger as long as they are moving around, but they must change their clothes and rub down with a bath towel if they stay in the tent.
6. Possibly you can borrow tents from a camping or fishing club, but if you have to buy tents you would probably get the most comfort in the regular army wall tent, 10 ft. x 12 ft. is a fair size, 12 ft. x 14 ft. is a very roomy tent, probably larger than you would really need.
7. The canvas army tent has many admirers and is used to good advantage. These tents are large enough for a patrol.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

By Howard L. Ramm.

On the 21st day of June, 1633, the Italian astronomer Galileo was made a martyr to the truth and obliged to back up some distance on the proposition that the earth do move.

Galileo lived at a time when everybody who possessed a few bits of brain expansion believed that the earth was flat as a checker board. They also entertained the notion that if a man were to walk due north for some time he would be liable to stop off the rim and fall in a perpendicular direction for several feet. Galileo did not believe this, for he had read up quite a little and had whittled out a telescope which enabled him to tell Jupiter from Venus by their costumes, particularly Venus, and he had argued against the astronomical bosses in a series of essays full of rugged eloquence and mis-spelled words. Galileo made a good many of his observations from the Leaning Tower of Pisa, an interesting natural curiosity which was held by a cross-eyed man with a weakness for the intoxicating cup. Those who were present at the time say that Galileo did not get on the first page for several weeks after he showed up the Italian school of astronomy.

The authorities were not pleased with Galileo's deductions and requested him to recant. Up to this time Galileo had not done much of his recanting, as his training had been on the La Follette order, so he replied in a pamphlet in which he called Copernicus and several other estimable people some of the hardest names he could think of at the time. This incensed every college professor in the country who had been teaching the flat-top theory, and Galileo was shared while engaged in naming a new hatching of stars and given his choice between recanting or having all of his bones that were within reach broken on the wheel. Galileo was then past seventy years of age, feeble in body and weakened in spirit, and he decided to recant, but history relates that as he rose to his feet after taking the vow with his fingers crossed, he murmured the immortal and inspiring words, "It do move."

Such an expert is Dr. Goddard, the Milwaukee Specialist, in treating chronic diseases, such as Rupture, Appendicitis, Gall Stones, Gout, Varicose Uicera and other Chronic troubles.

As proof of this statement read the following letters from reliable people right here in this state and if you are personally interested or have a relative or a friend who might be interested write to these people and find out directly from them what the Doctor has done for them.

RUPTURE CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

Janesville, Wis., 9, 12, '11

Dr. N. A. Goddard,

For the past six years I have had a double rupture and worn a truss.

On Feb. 28th, 1911, I came to see you at Janesville and started taking your treatment. I have taken six treatments of you and today I am well, my ruptures are gone and I feel well and strong.

During your treatments I did not suffer any severe pain nor did I lose a day's time from my work.

I am well satisfied with the way you have treated me.

Signed,
JOHN AFFELDT,
R. F. D. No. 4, Edgerton, Wis.

In answer to the question "To what do you attribute your success in curing these cases?" the Doctor replied to the writer "Principally to the fact that I do not attempt anything that I cannot do and to the fact that I do what over I attempt to accomplish in treating these cases you know I do not accept any incurable cases and I give a written legal guarantee of service to those whom I do accept for treatment."

"I shall visit Janesville on Tuesday, June 18, at Myers Hotel, and at that time many will come to me, some of these I can cure, others I cannot, and I shall tell them so frankly and honestly, and send them home without taking one penny of their money, for I never charge a cent for my consultations. To those whom I can cure I shall explain my methods and put them on the road to recovery. I have recently published a little book entitled, Modern Methods of Treating Chronic Diseases Without Operations, which I will give free to any one who will ask or write for it."

We are indeed fortunate in having such an able specialist as Dr. Goddard visit our city once a month. Many people here in this city owe their lives to his miraculous power to diagnose disease and once having determined the seat of the trouble effect a cure. Such a specialist treats hundreds of cases of appendicitis, gall stones and rupture, while doctors of general practice treat one and sometimes none. Naturally a man of Dr. Goddard's ability and experience effects cures that appear to be almost miraculous.

These names given are only a very few of hundreds of cured cases on file in his offices in Milwaukee and are selected because they are people whose gratitude for what the doctor has done for them, prompts them to allow him to refer to them.

Ladies suffering from trouble peculiar to their sex should by all means secure the doctor's advice. ALL MATTERS SACREDLY CONFIDENTIAL.

REMEMBER, Dr. Goddard accepts no incurable cases.

REMEMBER, he gives a written legal guarantee of service in those cases he does accept.

REMEMBER, his charges are within the reach of all.

Dr. GODDARD, Milwaukee Specialist, will be at Janesville, Tuesday, June 18th. At the Myers Hotel. Hours: 9:00 A. M. to 4:00 P. M. Consultation Free. If you cannot call write him at his permanent address, 121 Wisconsin St., Milwaukee, Wis.

CITY REFUSES TO PERMIT "ADS" ON GARBAGE CANS.

The application of an advertising concern to supply the City of Oakland, Cal., with patent refuse cans for street corners was denied yesterday by the City Council, because it was regarded as a bad precedent to establish. In that it would lead to further advertising schemes in the public streets, a thing that the members of the Council wish to avoid. Commissioner W. J. Haccus, to whom the matter was referred, reported yesterday that it probably will cost the city $1,000 per year to maintain the garbage cans, and that the advertising concern would pay $250 per year for the privilege and take care of the cans; yet he opposed the measure. "In my opinion," said Commissioner Haccus, "the city should eliminate as far as possible all advertising on the public streets and on property under the control of the city."

CITY OF GREEN BAY AIDS WOMEN TO BEAUTIFY PARKS.

Chairman Oliver of the public grounds committee, reported to the council that members of the civic beauty committee of the Women's club had spent $200 in beautifying the parks of the city, that three of the women, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs. Clark had caused three beds of flowers to be planted in Union park, and that he thought the city should give $100 towards further beautifying the grounds. The council voted to appropriate the money.

The child welfare committee of the Women's club sent a petition to the city to have a supervisor of the playgrounds at Union Park and the matter was referred to the public grounds committee. The children's ground committee. The children's ground committee. The children's ground committee.

To Prevent Accidents.

Dixon, Ill., June 15.—As a result of the drowning of Warren M. Lally in Rock river last Friday the City Council instructed Chief of Police Gaffney not to let any boat leave the docks within the city limits unless equipped with anchors, a set of oars and life preservers. A cable was ordered placed across Rock river above the dam.

CONCRETE PAVEMENT WARMLY COMMENDED BY INSPECTORS.

Another inspection of the cement pavement in Burlington was held Saturday when Ald. Green of Milwaukee and C. H. Davis a member of the Milwaukee board of public works, met and down for the express purpose of getting acquainted with this class of street paving. The Milwaukee men were enthusiastic in their praise of the city pavement claiming that they had seen a good deal of the same kind of paving elsewhere but nothing that quite came up to the standard of that in Burlington.

The Boarder and the Pie.

WHAT do you say to taking a boarder?" asked John. "A boarder!" said Dolly aghast. "Oh, that would be horrid. We don't want a stranger in our home." "He isn't exactly a stranger. He's a cousin of mine, and he's coming on to take a position in our office. He'll be awful lonesome, and I thought it would be kind of nice if we'd take him in and make him feel at home." Dolly made a wry face. "Would he play ball?" asked the Kid. "Don't do it, if you don't want to," went on John. "Only it's kind of tough on a fellow coming to a strange town." "I suppose we ought to be hospitable," reluctantly yielded Dolly. "He might come for a while, until he makes some acquaintances." The next night at dinner, the Boarder arrived. "Do have more beef," said John pressing food upon him. "Do you like sugar and cream in your coffee?" asked Dolly, pleasantly attentive. "I would like a glass of water, please," said the Kid, struggling manfully with the burden of his best behavior. Thus the dinner proceeded, impressively, if painfully, polite. "We'll have to cut the pie in five places now, won't we?" inquired the Kid regretfully as dessert arrived. "Sh—" said his mother. The Boarder looked somewhat blank. "Really," he said, "I'm not particularly partial to pie." "Oh, don't mind him," smiled Dolly. "That's just a joke of ours. You see, we save a piece for the cook, and then divide the rest." "Yes," went on the Kid. "Once father took a little piece, letting on he was polite. And so we all took little pieces to be polite, too. And then father said I guess I'll take another piece, mine was so small and he finished the pie. But we're on to him now." John smiled rather feebly. The Kid watched Dolly cutting the pie. "You're cutting it in six," he exclaimed excitedly. "You mustn't talk so much," reproved his mother. "Six makes them awful small, don't it?" he commented, mournfully eyeing his plate. "It's mighty good pie," said the Boarder. "I don't wonder your father took a second piece." The Kid who was hungrily eyeing the remaining piece looked gloomy. "Do have another piece," said Dolly temptingly. Anxiously the Kid watched the Boarder. "Oh, no, thank you. It's delicious. But I've had plenty." The Kid breathed a sigh of relief. Then he looked apprehensively at his father. John was gazing at the pie, but politeness restrained him. "If nobody's going to eat that piece," said the Kid hurriedly. "I might as well finish it." "Cutting it in six ain't bad after all," he remarked as they left the table.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have just bought some new clothes and I find they are very brittle. They break while I am pinning the clothes on the line. Can I do anything to them so they won't be a total loss to me? I cannot afford to buy clothes every day. MRS. V. L.

I would suggest that you cover the clothes with water and put on the stove to boil a few moments; then quickly dry them. If this is done once or twice a month you will find them more durable. It is well to treat all cloths in this way occasionally; they last better and, of course, are cheaper.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to a young man who really is very nice in every way except that he will eat onions and he knows I despise them. Really, Mrs. Thompson, the smell of them makes me ill, and I can't bear to have him talk to me after he has been eating them. He says they are healthy and he likes them and he doesn't see why he should stop eating them just because I am peculiar about them. Now what shall I do about this? I am very fond of him, but I can't have him served with onions all my life. I'd rather not marry him, though it will break my heart if I don't. MYRA.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me how to clean a nice straw hat so it won't turn yellow? It is very good straw and I would like to wear it again this summer. MARY D.

Get wallpaper cleaner, mop it a little and clean the hat with this. It will come out as good as new. If there are any particular spots that don't come out after the cleaning, dampen a clean cloth and rub over the spots; it will take them out. Laying a hat over night in cornmeal, washed out next morning. The process may have to be repeated once or twice, though.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am making a present for a girl friend who is to be a bride next month. What initials shall I embroider in it? JEANETTE LYTTLE.

The initials of the bride's maiden name only.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

by Henrietta D. Grauel

The laundry question is important at any season, but during summer it takes on an especial significance whether it is done at the house or sent away; for, unless the work is supervised, the daintily sprinkled lawn will be faded, the fluffly ruffled muslin will lose their pristine whiteness and the silk ties, shirts and waists will be stiff and harsh. Colors must be set and stains removed before washing. Strong salt water will set black; a spoonful of copperas, or one of sugar of lead, to each pailful of water will set blue and pink. A tablespoon of turpentine to a pail of water is also used for blue. Alum will set green or almost any color as well as varicolored lawn. The colored goods should not remain in the solution longer than a half an hour and may then be washed as usual.

Dr. Wiley has this to say of mildew stains—A solution of a teaspoon of chloride of lime to a quart of water will remove mildew from articles immersed in it and then laid in the sun. Wash the articles and if the stain still shows repeat the operation, but this will not do for colored clothes, as chloride of lime will bleach the color out of most anything, especially if a teaspoon of soda is added. For colored fabrics use powdered chalk. Moisten the stains with cold water, cover with the chalk and lay in the sun. Alcohol, too, will sometimes do the trick.

Tea and coffee stains may be removed by rubbing with moist powdered borax. Let them stand a half an hour and then pour boiling water over the spots. Fruit stains are removed by pouring boiling water on them. If they prove obstinate add ammonia; soap sets all stains. Iron rust can be taken out with salts of lemon. Make a weak solution with cold water and bottle for

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE INTELLECTUALITY OF FINGER TIPS.

A CERTAIN young woman who married a man of great brains and ability was being discussed by some of her acquaintances the other day.

"I don't see how he, with all his brains, could have married her," commented one of these critics who are always wondering why any one marries anyone else.

"Why? Isn't she particularly clever?" asked another woman.

"My dear," rejoined the critic, "She has no brains at all. Her father would have been glad to send her to the best college in the country, and she was so stupid that she couldn't even get through high school. And she has absolutely no intellectual interests!"

The woman criticised is the mother of two children whom she is bringing up with rare common sense; she is a good housewife; and she is a thoroughly pleasant household presence. One can tell by the way her husband looks at her that he finds infinite pleasure and peace in her and in the home she makes for him.

And yet her critic asserts that she has no brains! If the critic is right we certainly need a new definition of brains.

To me, this successful wife and mother is every bit as much a "briny" woman as the most successful private secretary or woman lawyer. Of course, it is a different part of her brain which is developed, but surely it is just as valuable a part. We might get along without private secretaries or lawyers, but I don't see how we'd manage without mothers, do you? To be sure, the book part of this of the popularly called "briny" woman which are not particularly well developed. Notice some of this species and see how the back of the head, just above the nape of the neck, is shaped. Two to one you will find it flat. Well that is where the bump of domesticity ought to be, the part of the brain that makes a woman capable of making a pleasant home. I think the woman who has that bump well developed has just as much right to be called "briny" as the woman who has a superabundance of brain tissue in some other part of her head.

The kind of brains this woman has you might almost call the intellectuality of the heart. Besides this, there is an intellectuality of the finger tips which is just as important to the world as any other kind of cleverness. One young girl in this town is the envy of all her friends because she can do anything with her hands from trimming a wonderful hat or making a toothsome cake to upholstering a chair or papering a room. She does not care much for books or study, and consequently insists that she is stupid. I call her the most clever girl I know.

A certain young man is considered a failure by many because he could not succeed as a business man. But he is very happy and very skillful as a maker of beautiful pottery, and I call him eminently successful.

The intellectuality of the heart and of the finger tips is just as much needed in this world as any kind of cleverness. Don't make the mistake of undervaluing them.

THE REIGN OF FAKERS.

People go right on consulting fortune tellers and all who make mystery their profession, in spite of the warnings of their common sense and everything that has been said and written in exposure of these people who prey upon the superstitious credulity of humanity.

Occasionally a fortune teller acts toward the keeping of the family peace. These rakes in the half-dollar or dollar fees and do no harm. They romance a little for their clients and occasionally give wholesome advice. Many reap quite a nice little income from regular clients, in just this way.

But the fortune teller can easily become a mischief-maker and a very serious one. A suspicious wife (and there are lots of them!) in consultation with an avowed fortune teller, can soon find all her doubts confirmed, have a detective agency and a divorce lawyer recommended to her, and before she knows, be well on the road to real unhappiness.

Occasionally a man will consult a fortune teller, though as a rule men leave such "foolishness" as they style it, to their more credulous womenfolk. But when a man does get as far as to place himself under the magnetic eye of one who claims to have mystic powers, he is even more credulous than a woman.

A recent divorce case is an example. The man had been told by a fortune teller to beware of his wife. Previously he had been on excellent terms with his wife, but he immediately began to suspect her of foul designs. Therefore he went home

HERPICLE.

"There is nothing," "just as good," as Newbro's Herpicle. Some dealers will even go so far as to tell you they have something better.

That dealer has an ax to grind. You can't stop his grinding, but you can prevent him grinding it at your expense.

There is one sure, swift way to do it. Go where you can get what you ask for.

You won't be obliged to do this very often, as fortunately the majority of druggists are honest and conscientious.

Newbro's Herpicle has been so long and favorably known as the original dandruff germ destroyer that no one should be deceived.

When you need a hair remedy, you don't want one which merely promises to kill the dandruff germ and prevent the hair from falling.

You want one that will do it. Herpicle does it.

The hair becomes soft and lustrous. There is life, snap and beauty where formerly the hair was dead, dull and brittle.

Newbro's Herpicle in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications of this wonderful prophylactic may be obtained at the best barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Send ten cents in postage or silver to The Herpicle Co., Dept. R, Detroit, Mich., for a nice sample of Herpicle and a booklet telling all about the hair.

mons with the fortune teller increased his distrust and he made his wife so miserable that she finally was forced into the divorce court. The judge was a wise man and sent the couple home after a good lecture to the husband on the general run of fortune tellers.

How far credulity will go is shown by the large following of a woman "magnetic healer" who claimed to cure cancers. She declared that she could "hear the cancers walking around" in the body.

These cancer factors abound in every city. Some have so wide a fame that people from other cities come to consult them and pay generous fees.

When the greatest doctors in the world admit that a cancer cure has not yet been found, it seems ridiculous that so many will believe the claims of these quacks who, simply because they invest themselves with mystery, get many besides the merely ignorant to follow them.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

BAD END OF A BRAVE ADMIRAL.

By A. W. MACY.

No braver admiral ever trod the deck of an American vessel than Stephen Decatur. He entered the service of the U. S. Navy in 1798. He was rapidly advanced, and was soon placed in command of a vessel. In the War of 1812 he rendered distinguished service; but his greatest performance was his victory over the Barbary powers of northern Africa. For many years pirate vessels of these countries had infested the seas, and especially the Mediterranean. With a little fleet of ten ships he brought them to time, and concluded a treaty by which tribute was abolished and prisoners and property were restored. For this he earned the thanks, not of America only, but of all Europe. But his life had a sad ending. As one of the three government naval commissioners he became involved in a quarrel with Commodore Barron and was challenged by the latter. In the duel which followed, March 22, 1820, Barron was severely wounded, and Decatur was killed.

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World—Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

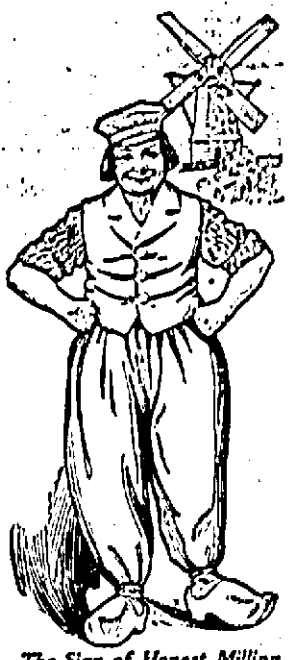

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

When you find a woman who does her own baking, and is absolutely satisfied with any other than

This month's devoted to the bride, and wedding bells make sweet refrain. Of all the knots that will be tied, I hope that none will break in twain. I see the destined damsel go, with blushing cheeks and eyes that shine; in vain I look for one I know, for Lillian Russell's not in line. The bridegroom's shirt is full of starch, the bridegroom's shoes are much too small; they may take up the wedding march, and music vibrates through the hall; against the balcony I lean and view the throng with kindly stare; there's something lacking

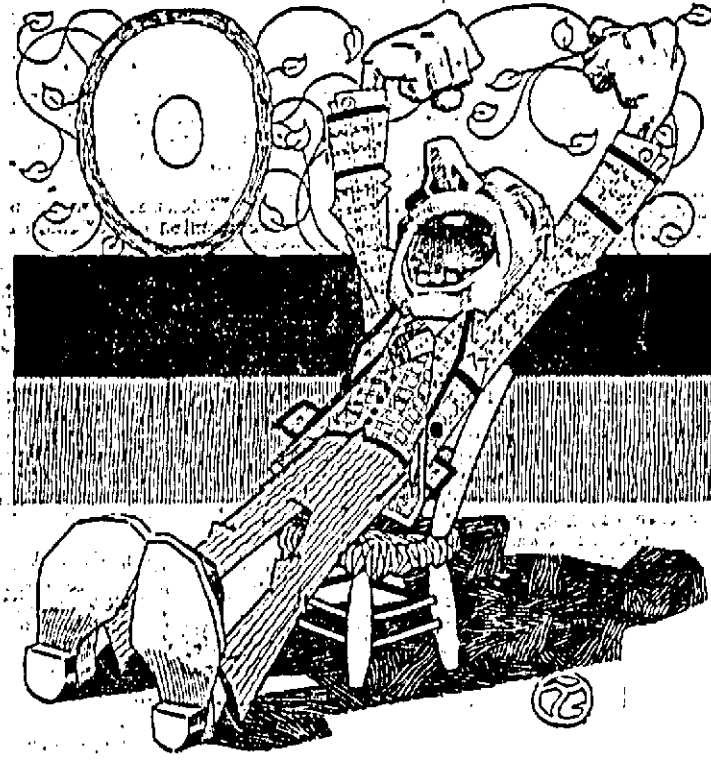

In the scene, for Lillian Russell isn't there. The pastor speaks the solemn words; the two are one—who shall divide? Ah, sweeter than the trill of birds, the murmur of the bride! And yet there's a discordant note in all the joyous burst of sound when we congratulations quote, for Lillian Russell's not around! Somehow, it always seems to me, a wedding is a false alarm, as Lillian, as the bride-to-be, does not invest it with her charm. It's like that good old Humpty when Lillian isn't in the cast; so, Lillian, have a wedding day before this sunny June is past!

Story of Campaign Doggerel In American Politics

WRITTEN FOR THE GAZETTE.

Modern day politics, with its primaries, its Australian ballot, its voting machine, its modern "machinery organizations" that control everything from the nomination to the election of candidates has taken the delight of the old time campaign away from the present generation.

No more the "marching clubs" with capes and caps, greasy smoking torches and bludgeons, parading the streets in favor of this or that candidate.

No more the old time "Wagwag" rears its head proudly during the campaign and the followers of the various candidates, sing songs of approval or disapproval as they gather. Even the day of the old time spool binder is fast fading into the dim history of the past and in its place is the smooth city gentleman with high hat, Prince Albert coat, who sits in an office building, a corps of trained stenographers at hand to take his dictation and mail the volume of campaign literature to the voter.

With the passing of the bands and parades as an essential feature to every campaign, the campaign songs have fallen into disrepute. True the "Hound Dawg" song did emanate from the Ozark mountains in behalf of Champ Clark, early this present year, but it is merely a return to the archaic things, the tuneless, meaningless campaign slogan of the past. Some of the Roosevelt supporters tried to paraphrase the song in behalf of their candidate and perhaps it may be heard at the coming Chicago convention but it is doubtful if it becomes popular. Perhaps the campaign songs have gone into disrepute because the modern day business man is too busy to learn to sing and prefers to listen to others rather than join in the chorus himself. It may be that the modern day singer is such that no song writer could enthrone over "roll of the Judiciary" or the "Initiative and Referendum." In the old days, when "politics were young," the faithful followers of the various political parties always attended singing schools in the winter, and learned to sing, but times have changed, and the "Fa Me De Do" of the modern singing school does not give expression to the needs of a campaign any more than grand opera music can be played in harmony by a street band.

However the history of American politics have a long anthology of song running way back to Washington's time when Robert Treat Paine composed the following verse about the first president: Should the tempest of war overshadow our land, Its bolts could never rend Freedom's temple stand; For unmoved at portals would Washington stand, And repulse with his breast the assault of the thunder. His sword from the scabbard, And conduct with his point every flash to the deep; For never shall the sons of Columbia be slaves, While the earth bears a plant or the sea rolls a wave.

As the nation grew older and, perhaps wiser, the staid tone of the verses became less and less artistic and we find the following song sung by Thomas Jefferson when he was a candidate in 1800: The Federalists are down at last, The Monarchists completely cast, The Aristocrats are stripped of power, Storms of the British faction lower, Soon we Republicans shall see, Columbia's sons from bondage free; Let it flow the Federalists will stare At Jefferson in Adam's chair! Andrew Jackson's campaign in 1828 brought a number of songs to the front among them the following ditty: You've heard, I suppose of New Orleans, Its famed for youth and beauty; There are girls of every hue it seems, From snowy white to sooty. Now Patenham has made his brag, If he that day was lucky, He'd have the girls and cotton bags In spite of Old Kentucky!

But Jackson! he was wide awake, And was not scared at trifles, For well he knew Kentucky's boys, With their death-dealing rifles, He led them down to cyprus swamp, The ground was low and mucky; There stood John Bull in martial pomp And here stood old Kentucky. In the campaign of 1836, the famous Clay-Jackson struggle, we find "Up Salt River." It was the outcome of a trick played on Clay by his political opponents when he was making a trip by row boat on the Ohio river to make an important campaign address. The campaign was a Jackson man and rowed him into a small branch stream, called Salt River, and made him mis his talk which might have won him many votes. The song was revived in '40 in the Harrison campaign with the following words: Our vessel is ready, we cannot delay, Harrison's coming and we must away—Up Salt River! Up Salt River! Up Salt River! Oh, heigh-ho!

This campaign of '40 was perhaps the most replete of all campaigns in doggerel verse. William Henry Harrison and John Tyler in their Log Cabin and hard cider campaign are famous in verse and history and the struggle against Martin Van Buren, the democratic nominee resulted in victory for the Log Cabinites. One of the famous songs was: Farewell, dear Van, You're a used-up man, Van! Van! Van! You're not our man!

That Matty loves the working man, No workingman can doubt, sirs; For well he doth pursue the place That turns the worker out, sirs! He turns them out of Whig employ, He turns them out of bread, sirs, And middle men doth he annoy, By striking business dead, sirs!

For Matty is a democrat, Sing, Yankee Doodle Dandy! With spoons of gold, and English coach, And servants always handy! It was in this campaign that the famous "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" was heard, to be repeated against when the famous old General's grandson, Benjamin Harrison was elected president in 1888. The song was based on Harrison's victory over the Indians in the early wars and ran: What has caused the commotion, 'motion, 'motion, Our country through? It is the ball a rolling on, for Tippecanoe and Tyler, too! And with them we will beat Van! Van is a used-up man!

Let them talk about hard cider, cider, cider, And log cabins, too— It will only help speed the ball for Tippecanoe and Tyler, too! The late-writing hawks outside the door, door, door! And it is never pulled through. For it was never the custom of old Tippecanoe and Tyler, too!

Another verse of the same campaign which was sung with great gusto by the crowds that seemed to think that Van Buren was too elegant, was: Tippecanoe has no chariot to ride in, No palace of marble has he to reside in, No bags of gold or eagles, not lots of fine clothes, But he has wealth far better than those— The love of a nation, free, happy and true And the riches and portion of Tippecanoe!

Down in Maine, in a gubernatorial fight, they blended state and national affairs in these lines: She went hollibon For Governor Kent, For Tippecanoe and Tyler, too! For Tippecanoe and Tyler, too!

In 1844 we find the full dinner pail song. This was later revived in the McKinley campaign of '00 but when James K. Polk defeated Henry Clay he had it for his slogan. It was a ball for the labor vote and caught on as the saying goes. Here's a health to the workingman's friend, Here's good luck to the plough and the loom! Him who will not join in support of our cause, May light dinners and bluelight blime! And this one:

The gallant Whigs have drawn the sword And thrown the idle sheath away; And onward is the battle-word, For Home Protection and for Clay! The Clay followers however, not disheartened by the ditty and came back with the following serious note: The great, the wise, the virtuous, all they say, In Time's grand progress, die and turn to clay; A dying Nation shall the comment give— She turns to Clay—but turns to Clay to live! Polk was a democrat, Clay a Whig and his followers, the rampant element, burst into verse as follows: The moon was shining silver bright, The stars with glory crowned the night, High on a limb that some old coon was singing to himself this tune— Get out of my way—you're all un-lucky, Clear the track for old Kentucky.

There was a response to that from the Polk singers after the election: Not a cheer was heard, not a single shout, As away to the ditch they hurried; No bank-paid orator rose to spout, O'er the hole where that coon was buried. So rapidly tumbling him all alone, With his tail's wounded stump quite gory, They raised a faint shout, twist a cheer and a groan, And left him alone in his glory. Zachary Taylor, old "Rough and Ready," came to the Presidential chair in 1848 with the song: "Clear the track if your toes are tender For honest Zack can never surrender." Franklin Pierce, the next president appears to have left no real campaign song sheets but the following campaign was a strenuous one. It witnessed the birth of the Republican party, saw four candidates in the field, James Buchanan, democrat, successful, but John F. Fremont, the Pathfinder and republican standard bearer was well advertised in verse. Buchanan being termed the "old grey horse" while Fremont was known as the "mustang colt." The mustang colt is strong and young, His wind is strong, his knees not sprung. The old grey horse is a well-known hack, He's long been fed at the public rack, The mustang is a full-blooded colt, He cannot shy! He will not bolt! The old grey nag, when he tries to trot, Goes round and round in the same old spot! The mustang goes at a killing pace, He's bound to win the four-mile race! Then do your best with the old grey hack, The mustang colt will clear the track! The song writers were particularly hard on Buchanan, and gave a succession of his easy-going ways in these lines: The dough, the dough, the facial dough, The nose that yields when you tweak it so! It sells for the spoil—it sells it's soul! For a spoonful of pup from the Treasury bowl, But Fremont did not escape entirely. When Fremont raised a flag so high On Rocky Mountain's peak, One little busy bee did fly And light upon his cheek.

But when November's Ides arrive To greet the Colonel's sight, Straight from the Democratic hive Two D's will on him light— Duck and Dreck. Millard Fillmore had to listen to

True in 1900 the parades came back but daylight, one, with the Teddy Rough Riders in line. The democrats were high alk-hats for the most part and carried canes in the larger cities while the old fashioned rallies in which whole counties had joined in the eighties were lost sight of. The day of the practical politics had arrived, 1904 saw again the Roosevelt followers in parade, but the presidential candidates were now travelling by special trains and speaking from the rear end of the cars and the parades in the smaller towns done away with. We find many songsters singing the song the Rough Riders are supposed to have marched up San Juan hill to, "There 'll be a hot time in the old town tonight," but no real campaign slogan.

Taft's campaign in 1908 was even more dignified than ever. His speakers travelled by special trains as did the democratic candidate and both parties conveyed their speakers to the opera house of the city or public hall where strong talks on timely subjects were given. If time did not permit for this they spoke from the rear platform of the train at the depot for a few minutes.

Already the campaign of 1912 has opened. Even before the conventions which nominate candidates, doggerel songs have appeared. Today the Roosevelt men are singing down in Chicago the following which may be come popular if Roosevelt is nominated: We've had a lot of Presidents, Since seventeen seventy-six, But we've only had one Roosevelt That welded the big stick; And when he swings his war club, And his eyes begin to gleam, You ought to see the roguish skidion, And hear the eagle scream. Chorus: Then hurrah for Teddy— The boy that's always there; And can ride a bucking broncho Or a grizzly bear. This takes place with Champ Clark's Hound Dawg ditty and the two of them may be heard during the coming summer months, just to remind us that people genius is not dead but sleeping.

It is actually amazing and almost insulting to see the large number of automobiles on the American market which strive to get your attention and prove their worth by constantly featuring some one, more or less, unimportant feature, such as a rim or a starter. These things are absolutely trivial. When you buy a suit of clothes do you buy it because of some new fangled pockets or buttons? No. You purchase fundamentals—material, fit, cut, style and tailoring.

The value of an automobile is arrived at on the same basis. Rims and guards, color schemes, etc., should be considered last.

Fundamentals establish values. With automobiles it's speed, power, capacity, construction, service, comfort and appearance you should look to. While the Overland is the most modernly equipped and finely appointed car made, it is these basic fundamentals which we have always pointed to as exceptional value.

A case in point is our Model 60 priced at $1200. The important things about this car—the things that really count—are fundamentals that cannot be purchased elsewhere for less than $1500. It has a big powerful thirty-five horsepower motor which can easily take you fifty miles an hour if you so desire. It seats five large people with comfort. The chassis is big and strong; made of the best materials the world produces. It is practically indestructible.

All of our special steels are rigidly inspected and thoroughly tested in our own laboratories. The axles are drop forged in our own plants. The frame is of pressed steel and has a single drop. The rear system is unusually rugged.

The finely cut and accurate gears are made of Vanadium steel. The transmission is of the selective type, three speeds and reverse, fitted with the best bearings. The upholstery is of good leather hand stuffed with fine hair. The finish of the car is beautiful, rich and handsome, being in dark Overland blue, and battleship grey wheels.

What Proves the Value of a Car?

It is actually amazing and almost insulting to see the large number of automobiles on the American market which strive to get your attention and prove their worth by constantly featuring some one, more or less, unimportant feature, such as a rim or a starter. This description will fit any $1500 car on the market. Compare and be convinced.

So far as the other features go, you cannot find a car that is more complete nor more up-to-date than the Overland.

It is a combination of everything that has proven practical in the motor car world. One small but important feature is the famous Overland center control. We adopted this several years ago. In fact, we practically started center control in this country. By degrees the others fell in line. They had to. One well known $6000 car has adopted center control for 1913—something we did three years ago. And until we find something better we will continue center control simply because it is the most practical location for both operating levers and it gives you full use of both fore doors.

But don't make the serious and costly mistake of buying a car on the strength of a single feature or two. Stick to power, speed, comfort, service, appearance and life and you'll get the most for your money. Other makers being higher in price incorporate in their cars one or two of these featureless features, and this is their sole excuse to get a much higher price for a car that is fundamentally no better, and in the majority of cases not as good as the Overland. That is why you find so many $1500 cars that are point for point the same as our $1200 car.

Our $1200 (Model 60) car gives you every identical practical thing found in any $1500 car made. Investigate and see. Our dealer is at your service. Handsome catalogue on request.

OVERLAND CENTER CONTROL.

The center of the car is the only practical location for both operating levers. Easy to operate, always in-reach, and you have free use of both fore doors.

Any other style is obsolete and out of date. Stick on the modern Overland center control. A demonstration will prove its superiority.
